HUGHES TO BE CHIEF JUSTICE

Death of Melville Fuller Has Great Political Significance

WAS A LIFE-LONG DEMOCRAT

Head of United States Supreme Court
Will Be Republican For First Time
In Twenty-Three Years—Career of Noted Jurist Who Unexpectedly
Passes Away at His Summer Home
In Sorrento, Maine

Bar Harbor, Me., July 5.—Melville Weston Fuller, chief justice of the United States supreme court, died at his summer home at Sorrento. His death was sudden, coming as a direct result of heart failure. In the last few days he had apparently been in the best of health.

The chief justice expired in the arms of his daughter, Mrs. Nathaniel Francis of Washington. His granddaughter, Miss Aubrey Francis, also was at the cottage.

Melville W. Fuller was born at Augusta, Me., Feb. 11, 1833. He was graduated from Bowdoin college, taking the degree of M. A. in 1853, after which he attended a course of law lectures at Harvard. He was given the degree of LL. D. by Northwestern and Bowdoin in 1888, Harvard in 1890 and Yale and Dartmouth in 1901.

Mr. Fuller's first wife was Callista O. Reynolds, whom he wed in 1858. In 1866 he married Mary E. Coolbaugh. Admitted to the bar in 1855 he formed a law partnership at Augusta and dabbled in journalism, becoming associate editor of The Age, a Democratic paper published in Augusta.

Turning to politics he became president of the common council and city solicitor. In 1856, however, he moved to Chicago, where he practiced law till 1888. On April 30 of that year he was appointed chief justice of the United States by President Cleveland. The appointment was confirmed on July 20, and he took office on Oct. 8, 1888. He was a life-long Democrat.

The chief justice's second wife died a year ago at her summer home in Sorrento. Seven daughters and a son survive her.

After this event it was reported that Fuller was about to retire, taking the pension of $10,500, to which he was entitled. President Taft was declared to have been picked as his successor. Fuller, however, declared at last that he would not break the tradition that no chief justice ever resigned.

As chief justice, Fuller administered the oath of office to six presidents—Harrison, Cleveland, McKinley (twice), Roosevelt and Taft.

Before the court adjourned Chief Justice Fuller assigned the calendar for the coming fall session of the court, when the Standard Oil and tobacco trust cases are to be finally threshed out.

For the first time in twenty-three years there will be a Republican chief justice of the supreme court of the United States. The death of Chief Justice Fuller opens the way for the appointment of Governor Hughes of New York to that important position. At the time of his appointment as associate justice it was strongly intimated by President Taft that should there be a vacancy Hughes would be offered the office.

The death of the chief justice makes two vacancies which the president will fill when congress meets in December. He is now looking for a successor to Justice Moody, who will shortly retire, congress having passed special legislation for his retirement with pay.

Auto Driver Killed on Speedway Indianapolis, July 7.—Thomas Kincaid, a well-known automobile driver, was killed at the Indianapolis motor speedway. He was in trial practice when the car ran off a high embankment. He was caught beneath the wreck.

MOODY IS IMPROVING

Friends Say He Expects to Return to the Supreme Bench

Magnolia, Mass., July 7.—Friends of Associate Justice Moody of the United States supreme court still hold to the opinion that he will not resign at present, and some of them go so far as to say that he will not accept the provisions of his retirement act.

Those few friends who have seen him recently state that his health seems slightly improved and that he holds strongly to the belief in his ultimate recovery and resumption of his seat on the supreme bench.

Ever since he was taken ill with rheumatism many months ago he has held this belief and so long as he continues to show improvement, however slight, his friends do not expect that he will take advantage of the act whose provisions expire in a trifle over four months.

"ROOSEVELT LED ASTRAY"

Opinion of Ballinger, Who Says Poindexter Is a Socialist

Washington, July 7.—Secretary Ballinger of the interior department, referring to the report from Oyster Bay that Mr. Roosevelt had espoused the cause of Miles Poindexter as a candidate for the senate to succeed Senator Piles of Washington, said:

"If the published report is true Mr. Roosevelt has been badly led astray by the deception of the people who claim to be his friends." He added that he had taken no active part in the politics of Washington for a long while.

"I do not consider Mr. Poindexter a Republican," he continued, "but a rank Socialist, or, rather, if he is not one he will be one soon."

GIVE CREDIT TO GOD, SAYS ENGINEER HERO

Sticks to Post Until He Puts Burning Steamer Ashore

New York, July 7.—Fire on the three-decker wooden steamer Grand Republic, sister ship of the ill-fated General Slocum, carrying but forty-five passengers, developed a real hero yesterday afternoon in the bay when the vessel was returning from Far Rockaway to take the average 2000 down to the beach for the night.

The hero is Samuel Howard, chief engineer, who stood at his post in the engine room, answering every bell from the pilot house, while the dense smoke, and at times the flames, made it necessary for him to use his sense of touch to carry out the orders.

When the boat had finally docked he groped his way up the engine room stairs, staggered to the railing and gasped for breath, blind for an hour.

The crew cheered him as he appeared, and then gave him credit for saving both ship and passengers. "Don't give me credit," said he, "give the Almighty God credit for enabling us to land in safety."

The fire started in the cook's galley and shot up through the old paddle-box. Before it was extinguished by the crew and several score Brooklyn firemen it did about $5000 damage.

BLEACHED FLOUR VERDICT

It Is Against Millers, Who Will Be Heavy Financial Losers

Kansas City, July 7.—The federal jury, in whose hands the bleached flour case has been since Tuesday, reached a verdict yesterday afternoon against the millers.

The decision will mean financial losses running into millions of dollars for the grain dealers, millers and farmers of the southwest, principally in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Home Course In Domestic Science

VII.—Substitutes For Meat.

By EDITH G. CHARLTON,
In Charge of Domestic Economy, Iowa
State College.

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

IT has been previously hinted in these articles that meat need not form a part of every meal—in fact, the majority of people will have better health if they abstain from flesh eating oftener than once a day. The suggestion has also been made that meat substitutes, such as dishes in which eggs, beans, cheese or nuts form the chief ingredient, be served at least two meals a day. The variety of ways in which the materials may be used is numerous, all that is needed being a little ingenuity in combining them with other ingredients in order to obtain satisfactory results.

Some people who are fond of hearty foods and meat flavors are loath to see the meat platter depart from the table only to reappear once a day. For such persons it will be necessary to practice the virtue of patience, make the other dishes substantial and appetizing and occasionally take a few lessons on food values. Beans, nuts and cheese all contain a larger percent of protein than meat and, combined as they often are with other protein food, are really more nutritious than meat.

Cheese is a food rich in nutriment. It contains more than twice as much tissue building material than meat and a large percent of fat. But because it is a concentrated food it gives the digestive organs considerable work. One reason for this is because the curd of the milk has been hardened by heat in the process of making, besides being closely pressed. Grated or finely broken cheese is more readily digested than that served in larger pieces. Cooking also increases the indigestibility of cheese, and for this reason in all dishes requiring cooking the cheese should be subjected to as little heat as possible. There is a large amount of fat in cheese, and cooking fat changes its character, breaking it up into glycerin and fatty acid. For this reason all fat used for cooking purposes should not be heated longer or to a higher degree than necessary. A very delicious supper or luncheon dish in which cheese is used in combination with cooked macaroni, eggs and milk is known as macaroni loaf and is made as follows:

Macaroni Loaf.

Three-quarters of a cup of macaroni, one cup of cream, one cup soft bread-crumbs, one-quarter of a cup of butter, one tablespoonful of red or green pepper, one-half cup of grated cheese, one tablespoonful onion juice, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, three eggs and one tablespoonful of salt. Cook the macaroni in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and rinse in cold water. Scald the cream, add breadcrumbs, butter, pepper, salt, grated cheese, parsley, onion juice, then beaten eggs and macaroni. Line a quart baking dish with buttered paper, turn in mixture, set the pan on many folds of paper in a dish of water and bake in a moderate oven from one-half to three-quarters of an hour. Serve with tomato sauce.

Tomato Sauce.

Two tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoonful of pepper, one cup of stewed and strained tomatoes, slice of onion and half a teaspoonful of capers. Brown flour and butter separately, then combine and add salt and pepper. Cook tomatoes with slice of onion for a few minutes, then remove onion and add juice gradually to butter and flour. Cook thoroughly, then add capers.

The macaroni should be broken in inch pieces and cooked in a quart of boiling water to which a tablespoonful of salt has been added. Keep boiling rapidly until the macaroni can be crushed between the thumb and finger; drain and pour over it a quantity of cold water to keep the pieces from sticking together.

How to Cook Eggs.

The white of egg is almost entirely pure albumen, a substance which is quickly coagulated by heat and toughened by prolonged cooking. Albumen is the protein part of animal foods and when hardened by cooking is rendered much less easy of digestion. It is probable that eggs and meat cooked as carefully as may be are less readily acted upon by the gastric juices than either would be in the uncooked state. Albumen coagulates at a very moderate temperature, only a little higher than 100 degrees, and at less than simmering point, 180 degrees, it is hard. Boiling makes it tough and indigestible; hence it can readily be seen that eggs should never be boiled if their digestibility is to be retained in even a moderate degree. The term "soft boiled" or "hard boiled" should never be applied to eggs; rather, "soft cooked" and "hard cooked" would better be used. The custom of boiling eggs three minutes is an unwise one to follow. This is the scientific method for cooking eggs in the shells, and when it is followed even the hard egg, cooked until its yolk can be grated, will be found perfectly digestible.

Soft Cooked Eggs.

Allow one pint of water for two eggs. Heat in double boiler until water in the outside part of utensil is boiling. Temperature of water in inner vessel will be 180 degrees. Put in eggs with a spoon, cover and let stand over fire for six to eight minutes if liked soft cooked, thirty minutes for hard cooked. The same result may be obtained by having water boiling in saucepan. Slip in eggs and remove saucepan to back of range where water will not boil again. Eggs perfectly cooked should be placed and kept in water at a temperature of 175 degrees.

Nothing is more tempting for breakfast than a light, fluffy omelet, so tender that it almost vanishes at a touch. The secret of a good omelet is to beat much air into the eggs and then apply a moderate temperature in cooking that the albumen may not be toughened. The air in the eggs will expand by the heat and be retained by the albumen as it is hardened. My favorite recipe for an omelet, which may be served with tomato, cheese or oyster sauce, is as follows:

Plain Omelet.

Four eggs, half teaspoonful of salt, a few grains of pepper, four tablespoonfuls of water and one tablespoonful of butter. Separate yolks from whites. Beat yolks in a bowl with a Dover beater until thick; add salt, pepper and water. Beat whites until stiff, cutting and folding the yolks into them until the mixture is blended. Melt butter in omelet pan, and when moderately hot turn in mixture, spread evenly, place on range where it will cook slowly—about twelve minutes. Keep the temperature low until the last minute, when it may be raised to brown the bottom. When well puffed put pan in a moderate oven to cook the top—that is, until omelet is firm to the touch. Grease, cross the top and fold. Serve at once.

Cheese Custard.

Half cup of cheese, three eggs, two cups of milk, salt and pepper and slices of buttered bread. Beat eggs, adding salt, pepper, milk and grated cheese. Then pour over slices of buttered bread and bake in moderate oven, following method of baking custard. What a simple dessert is a baked custard! It is a favorite with almost every person when baked until firm, with no indications of wateriness. And yet, possibly because it is so simple, it very often appears more like curds and whey than the article which the name implies.

The secret of success is in the method of cooking. The oven should be moderate, only hot enough to brown a piece of white paper in twenty minutes, and the dish containing the custard should be set in a pan of hot water on several folds of paper to equalize the temperature and prevent the custard boiling.

Baked Custard.

Four cups of scalded milk, five eggs, one-half cup of sugar, one-quarter teaspoonful of salt and a little grated nutmeg. Beat eggs, add sugar and salt and pour on slowly the scalded milk. Pour into buttered baking dish or into individual buttered baking cups, sprinkle with nutmeg, set in a pan of hot water and bake in a slow oven until custard is firm. Remove from pan containing hot water and set in cold.

Stews and Soups.

A few pounds of the clod or forearm are excellent for a stew. Cut the meat into small pieces for serving. Plunge into rapidly boiling water, set the kettle over the simmering burner or a very low fire where it will not boil again and cook slowly until meat is tender. Salt and pepper may be added after the meat has been seared, and as the water boils away more should be added. Meat is thus cooked in a small quantity of water, and some of the juice and flavor are in the liquid. Meat is boiled in a large quantity of water by plunging the piece into the boiling water and allowing it to boil three or four minutes. This closes the cut muscles, hardens the outside and keeps the juices in the meat.

In making soup the method is exactly opposite. The meat is cut into small pieces—a shank or shin is best for soupmaking—put into cold water and salt added at once. This will draw out the juices of the meat into the liquid. The water should not be allowed to boil throughout the entire time of cooking. If vegetables are used, they should not be added until the last hour.

The Editor Won

A London paper described a children's excursion as a "long white scream of joy," and was called to account by a correspondent, who said that a scream could be long, but not white, whereupon the editor justified himself by urging that "a hue is often associated with a cry."

WHEREAS, Isabella J. Malone, the guardian of said insane person, has presented her petition for license to sell at private sale, in accordance with the order named in said petition, or upon such terms as may be adjudged best, certain real estate therein specified, of her said ward for her maintenance.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Lawrence, in said County of Essex, on the eighth day of July, A. D. 1910, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to each of you fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Andover Townsman, a newspaper published in Andover, the last publication to be on one day at least before said Court; and also by delivering a copy of this citation to the State Board of Insanity seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, Rollin E. Harmon, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of June in the year one thousand nine hundred and ten.

J. T. MAHONEY, Register.

MR. BUSINESS MAN!

Would you deliberately expose your wife or child to sickness by sending either of them out to deliver a message on a raw, stormy night?

Would you care to go yourself?

THINK A MINUTE!

Your wife, or some member of your family, is obliged to do this very thing,—perhaps go way in town on some domestic errand nearly every day,—unless there is a telephone in the house to do it for them.

If you have not a telephone, don't you think you owe one to your wife and family as a safeguard to their health?

The cost is but a few cents a day. Confer with our LOCAL MANAGER.

WHOLE ENCOUNTER ONE-SIDED

What Victor and Vanquished
Saw of the Battle

BY JOHN A. JOHNSON

I am happy and sad. Happy that I won today's battle; sorry that I had to knock out such a famous fighter as Jim Jeffries.

I never was in doubt of victory and it came out just as I had planned. I fought my own fight, a waiting battle, and have demonstrated I knew my own way the best.

I guess I have forever set at rest
all talk about "yellow streaks." My victory is not to be regarded as a victory of color; color was not involved
today. It was just plain boxing science, stamina and punch. I had all three.

BY JAMES J. JEFFRIES

I lost fairly and squarely, and there is nothing more to say. I did not underestimate Johnson's ability. It was my own ability to come back that I was mistaken in. I have no excuses to offer for defeat. I believed I was in perfect condition, but it is sure that I wasn't the fighter I used to be. I thought I could come back and I failed.
I am very sorry to have lost, and sorely still to have disappointed the good friends who relied upon me and backed me to win. I did the best I could, but my best was not good enough.

I congratulate Champion Johnson
upon winning in a fair, square battle.
His victory was honestly earned.

STORY OF THE BATTLE

Reno, Nev., July 5.—John A. Johnson poked himself James J. Jeffries'
master at every stage of the battle for the heavyweight championship of the world. Even the great test of strength that was looked for seemed to be in Johnson's favor. In the early rounds, with the pressure of his right
glove he twisted Jeff's arm almost into the hammerlock position to prevent the big fellow using it while breaking.

While the rounds went on and Johnson's confidence came to him he took all kinds of liberties with Jeff. As a rule Johnson whips his men with his right hand. He used this a few times yesterday, but it was left hooks and left uppercuts while clinching that brought Jeff to terms.

In this kind of fighting Jeff was powerless after a few rounds had passed. He could not devise a way to escape punishment while they were feinting and swinging at close quarters. It seemed the easiest thing in the world for Johnson to free his left arm and tilt the big fellow's head.

An awed hush fell over the assembly when it saw Jeffries going to his inevitable finish, and it was not broken when the referee laid his hand on the black man's shoulder and proclaimed him the champion of the world. Later, when the champion's head appeared above the throng that surged about him in his corner, he was given the reward of fair play and the recognition of merit in the form of a lusty cheer, in which all who were not dazed by the overwhelming defeat
of their pride joined heartily.

As a contest the only thing that saved this one from being farcical was the thought which most of the spectators clung to desperately, that out boxed and out generally as Jeffries
was, he still concealed that fatal punch that put away Corbett and Fitzsimmons after they had punished him at will. Barring the possibility of the arrival of this punch,
there was not a point in the fifteen-
round journey that did not mark him
as outclassed.

Johnson displayed none of the weaknesses with which he had been invested by the supporters of Jeffries,
who interpreted any serious thought of Johnson as heretical and treasonable.

Jack Cheers For Jim

He did not look for a hole in the fence when he saw Jeffries enter the ring surrounded by his distinguished retinue, but arose in his corner and cheered with the rest of the crowd
when Jeffries climbed through the ropes.

He showed none of that yellow streak which it was taken for granted
he possessed. Jim Corbett, who was banked much on his persiflage and running fire of unexpurgated com-

The Smile That Won't Come Off

ment, taunted him unmercifully, but he gave back as good as was sent,
and even better without taking his mind off the job in front of him.

The weak kidneys that were ascribed to the black man proved another sign of the surcharged imagination and the suspicion that he would be content to "lay down" at a critical moment and be content to take the short end of his disappearance
from the unprejudiced minds of innocent persons who had fallen for it before the one-sided encounter was an hour old.

In fact, all the barriers, real and fancied, erected between Johnson and championship, crumbled piece by piece as the bewildered crush of Jeffries' worshippers looked on, and left not a shred of argument against the now prevailing notion that Johnson
was Jeff's master from the beginning,
and the big, happy-go-lucky, surrounded by his opera-bouffe court,
knew it all the time.

A One-Sided Battle

The match proved more ill-assorted
than the one between Corbett and Sullivan, which told the same tale.
Corbett had a wholesome dread of Sullivan's wallop, but Johnson flouted
the best that Jeff was supposed to have up his sleeve.

Johnson did not pay a particle of respect to anything that Jeff might have or might do, but played with him like a cat with a ball. One could see the heart leaving Jeffries round
by round, the transition to the towering confidence which had been fed to him for the last six months of the life
of this match was gradual but quick.

At only one spot in the road to defeat did Jeff give promise of turning the tide, that was near the end of the eleventh round when he landed one of his short right arm jabs to the solar plexus. It hurt and Johnson wobbled perceptibly, but before the white man could follow up his advantage the gong rang and Johnson looked over his opponent's shoulder and grinned
and joked at Corbett while Jeffries
was drilling at his stomach in clinches.

Much praise is given Tex Rickard,
who pulled off the fight after countless difficulties, and who, cool, calm
and quick, with nervous aliveness, handled the vast crowd splendidly at his arena and wound up by refereeing
the fight.

Merely to enumerate the celebrities
at the ringside would be to write a sporting directory of America—at least of the four hundred of sportdom,
and of the many more hundreds of near-four hundreds.

COULD NOT CONTROL
HIS MIND AND NERVES

Jeffries Was Mentally a Child
When He Entered the Ring

Reno, Nev., July 7.—Three physicians reported Jeffries to be in absolute perfect condition on the day of the fight. Yet when he walked into the ring he suffered what many believe was a complete nervous breakdown.

From tales that have been dropped by the men who seconded him in the fight it is gathered that Jeffries was mentally a child from nervousness and responsibility when he climbed through the ropes on Independence Day. He is reported to have told one of his seconds that he did not even remember when he left the rubbing room for the ring.

In all probability this is as near the truth as the general public will ever get. Jeffries fought his body muscles into shape, but his mind and nerves
he could not control. At the climax they wrested control from him and he was as helpless and inefficient in the ring as a child.

FIGHT PICTURES
UNDER THE BAN

Cannot Be Exhibited in Boston,
Declares the Mayor

THINKS IT TIME TO STOP

Stage Coach Holdups and Murder
Scenes Also Placed on Undesirable List—Similar Sentiment in Many Other Cities—Governor Dickerson
Says It Was Clean Fight and Nevada
Benefited Thereby

Boston, July 7.—Massachusetts has joined in the nation-wide movement
to stop the exhibition of the motion
pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight.
Mayor Fitzgerald announced positively that the pictures must not be shown in Boston. The mayor also announced that if there are any brutal bouts
given from time to time in this city
under private auspices, they, too,
will have to stop.

Following the announcement William Shaw, general secretary of the Christian Endeavor society, went to the state house and asked the governor to stop the exhibition of the pictures in this state. The conference was a long one.

The governor will announce his decision within twenty-four hours. Chief Whitney of the state police has for-bidden the showing of the pictures
on Sunday and will go further if the governor so orders.

The ban on the fight pictures was not entirely unexpected, but the ban on other undesirable pictures and for
"boxing bouts of a brutal nature"
came as a surprise.

"It's about time," Fitzgerald said,
"that Boston should live up to her reputation of being 'the Athens of America' and 'the centre of education.' Moving pictures of fights where one man is covered with blood and is hammered into insensibility by another man are not proper for display at public places where women and children—or any one, for that matter—may go in and see them. The same is true of pictures of murders,
stage coach hold-ups and other unseemly events."

Action came quick all over the United States in barring the pictures.
The district commissioner barred the pictures from the national capital.
Mayor Head barred the pictures from Louisville, and they were also barred
in Harrisburg, Portsmouth, Va., Providence, Fort Worth and Austin,
Tex., and Lexington, Ky.

Bills have been introduced in both branches of the Georgia legislature to bar the Jeffries-Johnson fight pictures from the state.
The secretary of the governor of Illinois has received word from the governor of that state, who is upon his vacation, that he is very glad that the movement against the pictures has started, and he gives it "his hearty approval and wishes its success
throughout the country."

Mayor Herman of New Orleans reversed his decision in relation to displaying Jeffries-Johnson pictures in that city and decided the films cannot be shown there.

THINKS STATE BENEFITED

Dickerson Says He Will Never Interfere in a Similar Case

Reno, Nev., July 7.—Governor
Dickerson has given out the following statement respecting the Jeffries-Johnson fight, at which he was a spectator:

"I do not at all regret that the fight was pulled off in Nevada. It was a clean fight and Tex Rickard's assurances to me personally were made perfectly good. There is absolutely no warrant, in my judgment, for the protests that have been made against
it. The fight in Reno demonstrated fully that there was nothing about it but what was proper for any state to permit."

"Of my own personal knowledge the holding of this event in Nevada was beneficial, rather than injurious, notwithstanding the claims advanced by some. It has made the possibility and natural advantages of this state,
with its undeveloped wealth, familiar to many who otherwise would not have heard of the state. I am well pleased with the intelligent manner in which the tremendous crowd
was handled and treated by the people of Reno, and I have heard only expressions of good will for the city
on all sides.

"I will further state that as long as the law licenses glove contests I will not attempt to interfere with such events in any manner in the future."

Curtiss Flies Over Water

Atlantic City, N. J., July 7.—
Glenn H. Curtiss last evening made another flight over the ocean, spending twelve minutes in the air. Curtiss says that he is entirely satisfied that flying over the sea is more certain than flights over land because of fewer sudden changes in air currents.

Lightning Kills a Child

Houlton, Me., July 5.—An Indian girl, 3 years old, was killed by lightning during a terrific electrical storm.
She was sleeping with her mother, Mrs. Frank Francis, who was not injured.

SEEKS NO OFFICE

Bryan Will Be a Free Lance in the Nebraska Campaign

Lincoln, Neb., July 7.—"I am not a candidate for any office; I desire nothing at the hands of my co-workers. They have already rewarded me and I am indebted to them for whatever influence I may have."
In these words, in a long statement made public, William J. Bryan practically declares himself a free lance
in the coming campaign in Nebraska and gives advance notice that he will advocate such principles as he sees fit.

Mr. Bryan admits that Governor Shallenberger has the support in his position of most of the recognized leaders of Democracy in Nebraska and deprecates that he has come to the parting of the ways with these leaders, but maintains he must stand by his program, which is, he says, to divorce the party from the liquor interests.

SECOND BANDIT IN JAIL

Abner Leaves Hospital and is Held
Without Bail For Murder

Lynn, Mass., July 6.—Andrew Abner, the second of the Lynn bandits, was lodged in the Salem jail with his confederate, Wasili Iwankowski. Both are charged with the murder of Thomas H. Landrean, the manufacturer, and of Patrolman James H.
Carroll, who were shot down June 25 in a Lynn street while on the way from the bank to the Landrean factory with the money for the pay roll.

Abner was shot in the head while fleeing after the murders, and had been in the Lynn hospital. He was arraigned before Judge Lummus in the Lynn court. The proceedings were brief, and he was held without bail and committed to the county jail to await action by the grand jury.

DOROTHY DEACON
BECOMES PRINCESS

Is Wife of Future Head of Great Family of Radziwill

London, July 5.—Miss Dorothy
Deacon, daughter of the late B. P.
Deacon of Boston, and Prince Antoine
A. Radziwill were married in St.
Mary's church here. The ceremony
was a quiet one, without bridesmaids,
and only a few relatives and near friends present. Lord Grey de Ruthyn gave the bride in marriage.

Prince Radziwill marries against the determined opposition of his mother, who is supposed to be in Austria, where she went to attend the wedding of a younger son. Radziwill is 25 years old and will succeed his father, Prince George, as head of the great Polish family of Radziwill.

His father is confined in an insane asylum. The bride's father died in an asylum in America some years ago,
after a scandal in France which resulted in his divorce. A sister, Miss Gladys Deacon, is noted for her beauty and has at different times been reported to be engaged to members of noble European families. The young women formerly lived in Boston.

BALLINGER WON'T RESIGN

Says He Will Be Found at Desk in Washington Next Year

Boston, July 6.—"I shall be back in Washington next year, and at my desk as usual at the head of the interior department when my detractors shall have been forgotten," was the reply Secretary of the Interior Ballinger made last night to the rumors
of his intended resignation.

Secretary Ballinger had returned from Beverly, where he had spent the day with President Taft in going over matters connected with the administration of the interior department. He left for Washington last night.

BECKERT SHOT TO DEATH

German Diplomat Pays Penalty For Robbery, Murder and Arson

Santiago, Chile, July 6.—Wilhelm Beckert was executed here for the murder of a Chilean messenger. Beck-ert, who was formerly chancellor of the German legation, was shot.

After embarking legation funds,
Beckert burned down the legation,
attempting to create the belief that he had been burned to death.

The body found in the ruins was identified as that of the native employee. Beckert was caught while fleeing a week after the murder.

THE STATE BY A COUNTRYMAN ABROAD

The "Insurgent" in Business as well as in Politics

There have not been many months, since the President of the American Woolen Company began his onward march from obscurity to the commanding position which he now holds in the woolen industry of the world, when some vicious and malicious spirit has not moved to make trouble for him. While this country knows but little of the customs that create the "right to rule," be it in business or in government, such as is manifested in many of the foreign nations, let no one suppose for a moment that there are not in business and in government in this country, people who believe that they have been foreordained to direct affairs. This is as true of the woolen and worsted industries as of any other great activity, and the rise into power of the aggressive, progressive, and commanding personality which now dominates this industry in this country, has probably led to as many heartburnings among the men who had believed they were created to control this particular field, as has ever been seen in any industry. The latest canon, designed with no other possible intent than to depress the stock of this great corporation, pictures President William M. Wood as being in serious ill health and practically incapable of carrying on the many affairs in which he is interested. Mr. Wood's best answer to these canards is clipped from the Trades Record of Chicago of July 6, which stated that Mr. Wood when interviewed with reference to these remarks made the following statement:

"I have never been in better health in my life and I cannot understand why such rumors should be circulated unless it is purely a stock jobbing proposition for the purpose of depressing the prices of the shares of the company in the stock markets. I certainly hope that stockholders of the company will not be misled by such idle rumors into selling their stock contrary to their best judgment. You may say that I am still on the job."

As a matter of fact, the trouble isn't with any single individual at the present time, so far as it affects the business of the country. The trouble is with the many individuals, and unless the many individuals get onto themselves pretty quickly they will find they are "sowing the wind" from which they will ultimately "reap the whirlwind."

It has been fashionable during the past few months to condemn the recent tariff bill. Everybody has had a brick to throw and he has thrown it, and most of them have been aimed against the particular schedule affecting the great business of which Mr. Wood is the head. If these bricks had been thrown from a distance, the Western states, or the clothing centres and such places, one could easily understand that selfish interest was behind the aim, but people in New England whose welfare is involved largely in the securities back of such business as we see in Lawrence, have also been throwing these bricks. It has always been popular for the theorist and the purist and the "holier than thou" fellow to curse the tariff. When the latest tariff is thoroughly understood, when the woolen schedule is fully appreciated by the men who have real sense, they are going to understand and appreciate that New England interests have been protected to be sure, but that New England's interests must be protected if New England labor is to be kept busy.

We may cry until doomsday for increased rates in wages, but the thing that counts is the sum of the pay bills that the laborer can count up at the end of a year. Steady work at fair wages is the bulwark of such industrial centres as Lowell, Lawrence, Fall River and New Bedford. Steady work at fair wages can come only as steady confidence controls the great mass of the people.

Some day this mass of people will appreciate that never in the history of the country has the demagogue been so effective in making trouble as in the year 1910. He may succeed in overthrowing the dominant party; he may succeed in destroying the necessary confidence to make business; he may succeed in putting into power, reformers and purists and all the other crowd that "would do so much" if given the opportunity. But the real result he will accomplish through all his manifest attitudes and characters will be to make mischief for the forces that have been for a generation creating the prosperity of New England, and that have been for the past few years preparing to make still more success on a more elaborate scale than had ever before been dreamed of.

The insurgent in politics is usually so noisy that it is easy to place him and to meet his attack. The insurgent in business works along different lines. He is usually a sneak. He is always a coward; he is ever a pessimist. When opportunity arises, he becomes an assassin. It isn't the great commercial leader who suffers at the funeral. It is the thousands of mourners who know not why they weep, but who do know that their leader, commonly called "bread and butter," lies dead.

THE TOWN BY A COUNTRYMAN AT HOME

The Need at Pynchard

The resignation of Principal Curtis makes a vacancy in one of the most important positions in the Andover public service. It is well known that the Townsman has not approved of much in the conduct of affairs at Pynchard School in the last ten years. It is well known that the Townsman has not believed certain phases of the Pynchard problem have been helped at all under the rule of the retiring principal. We make no claims to a knowledge of the educational results that may have been secured in spite of some of the weaknesses which have been repeatedly pointed out. That Mr. Curtis is an excellent teacher; that he has qualities fitting him for efficient work, is evidenced by his retention at Pynchard, and also by his promotion to a recognized better position where he has been called. The sole contention of the Townsman has been associated with the kind of discipline shown by many incidents inside and outside of the schoolroom, that it can do no good to repeat at this time.

Without any reflection upon the retiring Principal, we believe the time is ripe in Andover, and the opportunity is afforded by the necessary change, for a new type of leadership in Pynchard affairs. No one who is at all conversant with the school will believe that it is easy to make this change. The divided responsibility connected with the control of Pynchard must always, so long as that exists, serve to make very difficult both the choice of the right man, and the action of that man after he has been placed in the principalship. But with conditions as they are, we believe it is possible to make a long step forward in caring for the education of the boys and girls of Andover at Pynchard. The Townsman has no desire to dictate to the School Committee or to the Trustees, but we believe the voice of a great body of our citizens is expressed when we protest against a continuation of methods of discipline; of looseness of management, such as is familiar to all who are at all acquainted with Pynchard. The relief from this situation is in the man who may be placed at the head of the school. He should be a strong, vigorous, alert, educated man. He should not be selected because he will become a personal chum of the boys or be an agreeable associate for the girls. He does not need to be an athlete, nor will anybody desire that he shall be a prude. He does need to be, aside from his education, a man who believes in obedience; who can instill respect for elders in the youth under him; who will place emphasis upon the old truth that "Knowledge is power," rather than upon such new ideals as dominate the average boy and girl in Andover at the present time. Those who have in charge the work of choosing this man for Pynchard have a difficult task, probably more difficult than has ever yet faced the educational interests of Andover, because the time is so critical.

We wish for Principal Curtis the very best of success as he goes to his new position. He is sure to have a much less difficult task than he has had in Andover because it is doubtful if a high school in Massachusetts is hampered as is Pynchard. If the task of the committee in choosing his successor is a hard one, even more difficult will be the chosen one's work. But success in that work will show in a manner to give tremendous satisfaction to the man who achieves it. We believe there are men who can come in here and take up this problem as occupant of the Principal's place, who will give to the school as high standing, and as strong hold upon the community, as it once had under the leadership of William C. Goldsmith. No man can probably rule as he did, but modern methods will provide the way for a control just as effective as his was, and for a result in education, and in respectful, intelligent student life, such as he secured.

A Good Move

An Andover man is foremost in doing one of the good things that is now underway throughout the United States. As secretary of the United Christian Endeavor Society, Mr. William Shaw has started a movement to prohibit the exhibition of moving pictures illustrating the recent prize fight between Jeffries and Johnson.

There is every indication that Mr. Shaw's efforts, backed as they have been by almost simultaneous movements throughout the country by other forces, will result in keeping this disgusting spectacle away from the boys and girls of the country. It is difficult to understand how anyone can justify the realistic illustration provided by the moving picture equipment, when he would emphatically protest the holding of the fight itself. By every test that can be made, it would seem as if the judgment of the American people would be a unit, so far as respectability and decency is concerned, in backing Mr. Shaw and his associates in their movement. By this action there would be accomplished not only the shutting out of this spectacle from the view of thousands who ought not to be entertained along this line, but there would come a loss to the fight promoters so substantial as to hereafter make anybody hesitate in promoting such another exhibition.

Special School Committee Meeting

At a special meeting of the committee held Tuesday evening, the resignation of Principal Curtis was presented and accepted. The committee, with the concurrence of the board of directors of the Pynchard school, instructed Supt. Hutchinson to look over the field for candidates for a successor. The committee expects to get a teacher of several years' experience as principal for the position. The following janitors have been appointed for the year beginning August 1: James A. Eaton, Indian Ridge; Herbert Clark, Bradley; George H. Baxter, Richardson; Edward A. Burt, West Centre; John J. Crowley, North; George Cobb, Bailey; Caroline Spickler, Osgood. Herbert L. White was appointed janitor of the central schools till December 31, 1910.

Miss Althea Hastings has been re-appointed teacher in Indian Ridge school and Miss Ruby Copeland, teacher of grades II and III in the Bradley school.

Thieves at Work

Some unknown person or persons broke into Smith & Manning's store on Essex street on Tuesday night and took what money there was in the cash drawer, and a rain coat belonging to M. L. Farnum, one of the clerks, in addition to disturbing things in general throughout the store. The entry was made through one of the cellar windows, after which the thieves broke the panel in the door at the head of the cellar stairs opening into the store, pushed back the bolt by which the door was fastened and then were at liberty to ransack the entire place. This they proceeded to do and apparently did thoroughly, for early Wednesday morning when the break was discovered, the floor was strewn with bottles and canned goods, dress goods, etc. What was actually taken besides the money and rain coat has not yet been ascertained. The chief of police was notified and investigations are being made, but there is no trace as to the identity of the thieves. Those concerned feel confident, however, that the marauders were familiar with the store, and hope that the offenders may yet be apprehended.

The Fourth's Quota of Fires

Andover had her three fires as part of the Fourth of July observance. The first was in Ballardvale and an account of it can be found in another column. The second broke out Monday night or early Tuesday morning when a blaze was discovered in the shoe shop of Michael Francis on North Main street. It is not known how the fire originated, but it seems to have started directly inside the door. The shop was badly gutted and considerable damage resulted, although the machines were uninjured. The loss was covered by insurance.

The third fire did not break out until Tuesday, but when it came it proved to be one of the most serious that has occurred in the town for some time. The cottage owned by Paul Lee on Salem street burst into flames about two o'clock in the afternoon and the occupants of the house endeavored to get word to the fire department. Through some blunder in the transmission of the telephone message sent, the firemen understood that the scene of the trouble was at the residence of Gordon C. Cannon, some little distance from Paul Lee's. Thither the department went, and finding nothing wrong there, and there being nothing to indicate trouble further up the street, the men and apparatus returned to the engine house. There the mistake was discovered and the whole outfit posted back again to Lee's house. Considerable time had been lost, however; the flames had gained a headway and practically nothing could be saved in the house except a few pieces of furniture. Considerable effort was necessary to save the barn from igniting, but this was finally done. The damage done was therefore considerable. It is not known how the fire originated, but it is supposed that it was caused by a defective chimney. The loss amounted to $1500, partly covered by insurance.

Mr. Campion Buys Carter Block

The formal transfer of the Carter Block has been made this week and J. H. Campion is now the owner.

Trolley Express for Andover

The trolley express franchise in the town of Andover, which was refused by the selectmen at the public hearing held a year ago, has been granted, in spite of their opposition, by the railroad commissioners. Upon the refusal of the franchise the matter was taken before the commissioners who have just granted the right. The trolley express will therefore operate in Andover.

Degree for Mr. Kennigott

Rev. George F. Kennigott, pastor of the First Trinitarian church of Lowell, who is well known in Andover, was one of those to receive the degree of Ph.D. from Harvard university this week, as a result of the work performed by him at the university during the past two years. His degree was from the department of social ethics, the first time the degree has been given by the department.

Rev. Mr. Kennigott is also the recipient of an unusual honor from the university in that he has been named fellow in social ethics for 1909 and 1910, also the first time that such an appointment has been given.

As a result of the work performed by Rev. Mr. Kennigott while taking the courses in social ethics at the university, he has been named by President (emeritus) Eliot of Harvard, and others, as an investigator for that famous old organization, the society for the Propagation of the Gospel among the Indians, and will spend two months of this summer in a tour of the Indian reservations in the far west.

He will investigate the conditions among the Indians with a view to the proper investment of the funds of the society in the work among them, and will report back to the society in the fall. His trip included a visit to the Indian commission at Washington for the purpose of becoming thoroughly familiar with the methods of the government administration of the reservation.

Mr. Kennigott took up the course at the university, he declares, because his ministerial work in Lowell had brought him face to face with social problems with which he wished to become more familiar. He wished to become thoroughly conversant with every phase of social ethics, that he might better be prepared to administer his duties here.

The course in social ethics at Harvard covers a period of two years in the graduate schools and demands an immense amount of work sufficient to keep an individual exceedingly busy without attending to any other work.

Yet Mr. Kennigott found the time in spite of the multifarious duties of his pastorate in Lowell, to complete the course in the specified time and in addition, to write what is said by the Harvard authorities to be an unusual essay, of the great length of 200,000 words, on "The Lowell Social Survey."

The course at Harvard in which Mr. Kennigott specialized is an exceedingly difficult one. It includes four courses in the graduate schools covering the full two years, and in which the individual is required to obtain a ranking of "B" to receive a degree. It includes work in philosophy, psychology, ethics, etc., under such men as Prof. Munsterberg, Prof. Palmer and Prof. Peabody. Mr. Kennigott received a ranking of "A" in most of his subjects, so that there could be no possible question of a degree being forthcoming at the conclusion of his work.

Scotch Outing

The Lynn Caledonian club held a very successful outing on the Andover cricket grounds last Monday. A number of Andover Scots were present. Running, jumping, basketball, football and cricket events were carried out and a good time generally was the result of the gathering.

Our photographs are more than good photographs—they are true portraits, bringing out all that's best in character and individuality.

Wedding

DYER-ERB

One of the prettiest of the season's weddings was solemnized on the afternoon of the Fourth, when Leon Dyer of Scotland District was united in marriage to Miss Ina Erb of Sussex, New Brunswick. The ceremony took place on the lawn of the Old Homestead farm, the home of the Dyers, and was performed by Rev. F. R. Shipman. The couple stood beneath an arch of daisies and ferns, over which the Stars and Stripes was draped. In the midst of the flowers were also smaller American flags and an English flag.

The bride, whose dress was white net over silk, was attended by Miss Mary Mosher of Belmont, who was gowning in pink and carried pink roses. The best man was Harry Dyer, brother of the groom. The ushers were Percy Jeffrey of Reading, and Harry Dyer. The service, which was the double ring service, was witnessed by a large gathering of guests from Reading, Wakefield, Melrose, Belmont, Malden, Pittsfield and Andover.

Following the ceremony a reception was held on the lawn, and refreshments were served by Caterer Rhodes, after which Mr. and Mrs. Dyer departed on their wedding trip. On their return they will reside on Park street in North Reading.

The young couple were the recipients of many beautiful presents. The bride's gift to the maid of honor was an exquisite gold-mounted comb, while the best man received a diamond stickpin from the groom.

Local Clans in Scotch Picnic

Clan Johnston of Andover participated in the big Scottish gathering and union picnic which was held on July Fourth at the Riding Park in South Lawrence. Clansmen and their wives from Lawrence, Haverhill, Lowell, Amesbury, Boston and Manchester, N. H., were present and enjoyed the genuine "Scotch time" which had been so carefully planned and was so ably carried out. Clan Johnston was well represented on the various committees in charge of the picnic and the sports. On the picnic committee from the local clan were Robert Hutcheson, Neil M. Hutcheson, Arthur Innes and T. J. Manson, treasurer.

The sports consisted of races for girls, boys, and clansmen's wives; of the hammer throw, Scotch dancing, bagpipe marches, quoits, mile and half-mile runs, dashes, whippet races, etc., and all were carried off in a highly successful manner. Some 5000 people were assembled in the early afternoon to enjoy the sports and other pleasures of the day. Among the various events were the following:

220-yard dash—First, W. H. Black; second, N. Elliott; third, James Callum. Time, 22 1-2 sec.

Girls' race, 75 yards—First, Bessie MacFayden; second, Ada Connell; third, Catherine Campbell.

Clansmen's wives' race, 75 yards—First, Mrs. Ellison Ballantine; second, Mrs. George Guthrie; third, Mrs. Agnes Crockett.

Boys' race, 125 yards—First, Norman Campbell; second, Wm. Moore; third, William Robin.

Hammer throw—First, James Ughart; second, John Matheson; third, William Alexander.

Highland Fling—First, Grace McDonald; second, Jeanie Irving; third, Wallace McLaren.

Sword Dance—First, Grace McDonald; second, Wallace McLaren; third, Jeanie Irving.

Bagpipe strathspeys—First, David Fevrier; second, D. McQuavie; third, James Burrick.

Three mile professional race—First, Frank Kanaly of Boston; second, Bart Sullivan of Boston; third, Chase.

220-yard run—First, John C. Twomey; second, J. M. Lawrence; third, William Kelleher. Time, 26 1-5.

Andover's Crop Conditions

The monthly report of Milo H. Gould, given to the state board of agriculture, which touches upon the crop conditions in Andover during the past month, is as follows:

"Gypsy and browntail moths, tent caterpillars and cut worms are doing damage. Indian corn is looking fairly, with the acreage slightly increased. Haying has begun, with the prospect of a good crop. The acreage of early potatoes is about normal and they promise well. Early market-garden crops are backward, but have brought good prices. Dairy products of all kinds are higher than for a number of years. Pastureage is in good condition. Strawberries are doing well; apples promise well where the trees have been sprayed. Good dairy cows are scarce and high. Many have gone out of the dairy business in this section on account of small profits, but it may start up again with the increased prices."

LOCAL MAN PROMINENT

In Movement to Bar Pictures of the Johnson-Jeffries Fight

William Shaw of Andover, secretary of the United Christian Endeavor Society, is one of the prominent figures in the movement which has been begun to bar the exhibition of pictures of the recent Johnson-Jeffries prize fight in theatres and other places of amusement. On Tuesday of this week Mr. Shaw sent a telegram to the governor of every state and territory in the union asking that the recipient use his influence to prohibit these pictures. Favorable replies were received from several of these governors, chiefly in the South and West, while ambiguous messages came from others.

Mr. Shaw and the many others who are interested in this matter, feel that the exhibition of the fight pictures would be a brutal one, and unfit for many of the patrons of theatres, etc., to see. Several large cities have already barred them out and conditions seem to indicate that more will join in this anti-picture movement.

Mr. Shaw has been highly commended by the Christian Endeavor Society in all parts of the country for his energetic action in regard to the matter.

At a regular meeting of the South church last Wednesday evening, two significant votes, relative to the recent Jeffries-Johnson prize fight were passed. One, commending the courageous, energetic action of Wm. Shaw, secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, read as follows: "The South church of Andover has noticed with pleasure the efforts of Secretary William Shaw, looking towards the suppression of moving picture representations of the recent prize fight, and wishes to assure him of its hearty sympathy and approval."

The other took the form of a petition to Governor Draper, urging him to use his influence in suppressing such exhibitions throughout the state.

Obituary

ELIZABETH CLOUGH

With the decease of Miss Elizabeth Clough, on June 30th, one of the characters of Andover passed from our sight.

She was the third child of Dea. Josiah Bradbury Clough and Mrs. Dorcas Butterfield Clough, the one a pillar in the Baptist, the other in the Chapel church. Her elder brother Josiah died in 1856, at the age of one and twenty; her elder sister Dorcas, long an invalid, thirteen years later. Surviving Elizabeth is a sister, Miss Kate Ruth Clough, her companion in her seven weeks' illness, to which she had been brought home in the arms of her minister from the house of prayer; also a brother, Mr. Wm. E. Clough, a soldier in 1864-5 of Company B, in the 11th Mass. Regiment, with Ballard Holt, John B. Jenkins and Wm. H. Tucker. This brother, a commission merchant in Chicago for more than thirty years, said the final words over his mother's grave in the South church burying-ground, Feb. 24th, 1887.

Elizabeth's pretty face as a child is remembered by more than one. It was dear to Madame Abbot, the founder of Abbot Academy. To a nimble mind and quaint speech, she joined a warm heart and childlike faith. Her teacher, the strong and magnetic Nancy Hasseltine, approved of her. Her class at Abbot was the famous one of 1854. Comrades and pupils admired her judgment and her energy, no less than her jocose spirits. From her youth she was a champion of righteousness. Like Woods and Park she was a reverer of the Sabbath, of the word of God, of the cross of Christ. In the days of Harriet Beecher Stowe, she was an upright and downright worker for soldier and freedman. Her zeal for law and order was irrepressible. It made her no mean ally of Dr. Taylor and of Principal Bancroft in the cause of Christian education. Parents and guardians marvelled at her wit and wisdom of oversight. Her sense of the sacredness of her covenant with the church was rooted in her being. Charity to the needy was her breath of life. It found its climax in her beautiful bequest of her home, once on the Seminary grounds, to the American Missionary Association and the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society.

Like the Hebrew law-giver, she was independent, original, disinterested, conscientious, humble, devout in word and deed. Like him, too, she went up to Heaven, as if at the kiss of God.

The grief, reverence, and affection of many a soul, here and far away, last Saturday mingled with the roses of her casket, and the tears and smiles at her tomb, as with the hymns, scriptures and prayers attesting, through Mrs. Jackson and Professors Taylor and Ryder, her call from grace to glory. In his light, humorist and saint, sees light.

Surprise Party

On Saturday evening last at the home of Charles Mayer on High street, Morris Williams was tendered a surprise party, and during the course of the evening was presented with a handsome gold pin. Refreshments being served, the company adjourned to the lawn, where dancing was enjoyed, and a pleasant social evening spent. Mr. Williams is the janitor of Abbot Academy, and during his stay here has made a wide circle of friends. He sailed for Liverpool per "Ivernia" on Tuesday, and intends spending a few weeks' vacation visiting friends in England, Wales and Scotland.

Street Railway Petition Granted

The hearing on the petition in regard to the proposed relocation of tracks on Main street from School to Salem street, was held on Friday evening in the lower town hall, and the petition granted. No one, not even the parties interested, appeared before the selectmen in regard to the question. Mr. Bruce of the Boston and Northern Street Railroad Co. was unable to be present and the representatives of Phillips Academy were likewise absent. The matter was therefore quickly settled, and the petition granted. The railroad company have thus secured permission to "extend, alter and re-locate its tracks on Main Street in said Andover as follows:—To construct an additional track from the northerly end of the 1903 layout of the State highway to the existing double track southerly of Salem Street; and to alter and re-locate its tracks from the aforesaid northerly end of the 1903 layout of the State highway to School Street."

ABBOTT VILLAGE

Mr. and Mrs. George Snow of Essex street left town on Wednesday morning on a two months' trip to Newfoundland.

The winners of the prizes offered by the Smith & Dove Manufacturing Company to the tenants showing the best care and planning of the grounds about their tenements for the month of July, were announced last Friday as follows: First prize, $5.00, Robert Auchterlonie; second, $3.00, John Nicoll; third, $2.00, Mrs. John Ness.

Frank Jamieson removed his family last week from the tenement which they have occupied for several years on North Main street, into the house, No. 4 Ridge street, recently purchased by him.

It was the quietest Fourth of July the village has experienced for many years.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stewart and family of Derry, N. H., spent the Fourth with Mrs. Stewart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Stewart, of Red Spring road.

Robert Yule, Mr. and Mrs. James Yule and children of Jamaica Plain, spent the holiday season at the home of Mrs. Cairnie on Red Spring road. James Ramsey, our local piper, was a member of the Highland Pipe Band which furnished music for the Scottish games at the Riding Park last Monday.

Miss Sarah Saunders is taking a course at the Hyannis summer school.

George W. Buchan spent Independence Day with friends in Haverhill.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Anderson of Brechin Terrace visited in Boston last Saturday.

George Dick of Cuba street is spending the week at the White mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Hutton of congratulations of a wide circle of friends over the birth of a son last Wednesday morning.

Andover vs. Lawrence

The Andover Cricket club travelled to Glen Essex, the ground of the Lawrence Cricket club, last Saturday to play their return league game. Lawrence was in great batting form and quickly ran up a score of 156 runs for five wickets; the Andovers then went to bat, Lamond and Haddon being the opening batsmen, but Haddon was the only batsman on Andover's team to reach double figures; he having 37 runs. The Andovers were all out for 62 runs.

Following are the scores:

LAWRENCE
Bottomley, c D. Stewart, b Lamond	3
Hague, c Haddon, b D. Stewart	50
Waite, lbw, b Lamond	7
C. Wainwright, b W. Black	33
Babington, b W. Black	7
Walker, not out	31
Rhodes, not out	22
Extras	3
Total for 5 wickets	156
Crotch, Bray, Hill and O. Wainwright did not bat.

ANDOVER
Haddon, not out	1
Lamond, c Bray, b Walker	37
W. Black, b O. Wainwright	3
D. Black, b O. Wainwright	1
D. Stewart, b Walker	6
W. Stewart, not out	1
Gordon, lbw, b O. Wainwright	3
Fettes, b O. Wainwright	0
Low, b O. Wainwright	0
Duncanson, b Walker	0
J. Fettes, c and b Walker	1
Extras	9
Total	62

The Merrimack Valley league game scheduled to be played on the Andover cricket grounds to-morrow afternoon between the Merrimacks of Lawrence and the Andovers, is off, because the former cannot get up a team. Followers of the game in town will, however, have a chance to witness an interesting game on the home grounds, between teams representing the Tyler Rubber shop and the Smith & Dove mills. This should be a good game, because there will be some eleven exponents of cricket on both sides. Play will start promptly at three o'clock.

No Fight Pictures in Andover

The Wonderland Amusement Company desires to announce, in answer to numerous inquiries, that they will not show the pictures of the Jeffries-Johnson fight at any of their theatres. The management believes that an exhibition so brutal that it is prohibited in nearly every state in the Union is no fit subject to present to the class of patronage which they already have and desire to maintain. They also feel sure that they will be followed in their decision by numerous other houses throughout the state, as every day sees the motion picture business being brought to a higher plane, both as to quality of pictures and purity and wholesomeness of subjects.

Grange Prize Gardens.

The Danvers (Mass.) grange is undertaking a new line of work for its own town in the form of a prize garden contest for the school children. Thirty-six prizes and gratuities, amounting to $45, have been offered to be competed for by the scholars in the nine grades. The plan is based on the work of the Civic League in Salem, which has been conducting such contests for four years. It will be most appropriate work for a grange, combining an educational purpose with that of beautifying the home. The prizes are to be awarded for the greatest improvements in gardens and yards. Flower seeds are to be sold to the contestants at a cent a packet. Though the gardens are to be at home, the children will receive some instruction about them from their teachers, and friendly visitors will supervise their work. The superintendent of schools and teachers are cordially interested and think this a good way to introduce agricultural education.

Free Seed Graft.

The granges of Washington state or many of them are not disposed to receive free seeds from their congressmen at the national capital any longer. In many instances these seed packets are sent to grange secretaries for distribution to procure the favor of grange members. A grange paper published in Washington state suggests to grangers that they inform those who send them that they are not wanted and demand that the custom of sending out free government seeds be abolished. These seeds are burdening our already overburdened mails, and then congress refuses to give us a parcels post service because the mail service is a losing proposition. If it is necessary that the government buy the old seeds from the seed dealers, then it would be better to burn them at once than to send them through the mails and have them burned at this end.

McDOUGALL'S MUSINGS

Cooking

One of the celebrated Presbyterian preachers of Scotland took for his text, "What is man?" He divided his sermon as they often did in those preaching days, into heads (I heard this sermon). One of the heads was "Man is a cooking animal." They wish to know if we want our girls to learn to cook at our public schools.

If one thinks a moment this clergyman was not so far amiss in his estimation of mankind. Almost everything we eat or drink has been either made better or worse by what is called cooking. I am not to try to write an elaborate essay on cooking, but I wish to put my sermon into heads so that he that runs may read and understand.

Therefore in the first place, I wish to say that every girl should know how to boil a potato. Not a cook in fifty knows the best way to boil this common vegetable. Again, if they peel a potato, not one woman in a thousand takes time to only get off the skin; they slash off the best part of the tuber. A French cook knows this and peels off the skin only. Secondly: How few of our girls who wear twenty-dollar hats can make a cup of tea as it should be made. They think that anybody can make a cup of tea. I am not to say here how to do it. I only know that good money is paid to the grocer for this herb, and as it is in general use, it would be as well that all girls who hope to get a husband should know how to make tea.

In the third place: How often is a beefsteak or mutton chop ruined by a careless or stupid cook. I am not to say whether broiling or frying is best—either way is good if the cook knows her business. Many cooks don't know enough to put plates on the stove so as to have a hot plate to put this precious dear meat on after cooking.

Fourthly: How often is an egg boiled as you want it? It seems to be too much trouble to do this. I am not to dictate and say how long an egg should be boiled; that is a matter of taste. I only state that you will not often get it boiled as you want it.

A hundred years ago they had a three-minute sandglass to time the boiling of an egg. They also had an hour sandglass to time the length of the sermon!

Bread is said to be the staff of life, and for my fifth head I mention that the baking of good bread is a rare accomplishment. We can buy good bread, but the home baked article is cheaper and better if the housewife knows how good bread is made.

I leave off at fifthly. I say nothing about the concoction of fancy breads, angel cake, fudge and the like. The girls will all be angels if they will faithfully and joyfully attend to the foregoing discourse over cooking.

To be able to sew a little, to even know how to put on a button properly and know how to knit a stocking are not despicable accomplishments. The young woman who has a college diploma and can discuss "Browning," and appreciates and enjoys Wagner's music, is not often so ignorant of the common details of life and how to boil a potato as the girl who has not even a grammar school diploma. This may seem a paradox, but it is orthodox!

The educated girl has taken trouble to learn and knows the importance of attending to details, while the uneducated young woman is apt to despise housework as degrading.

I want every young woman who wishes to be thoroughly informed as to what made a lady 3000 years ago to read the last chapter of the book of Proverbs; and by doing her best by following the good old-fashioned way therein graphically described, whatever her station in life, she will be a real lady.

IAN McDOUGALL

PSALM XXV

WRITTEN FOR THE TOWNSMAN

This, like eight other Psalms, and several other Old Testament poems, is an acrostic, i.e., the first letters of the several verses follow an alphabetical order. The design seems to have been to make them easy to remember. When books were scarce and hard to make, the printing press was the memory. Hindoo literature shows the remarkable minuteness and precision with which the products of the mind have passed from generation to generation for thousands of years. We may suppose that the earlier records of the Bible were for a long time preserved in like manner.

We have here spelled out for us a prayer for protection, pardon and guidance; a meditation upon the character and dealings of God, and a further appeal for deliverance, in twenty-one verses, and one verse added by a later hand.

Structure

Three stanzas of seven verses each, most of them doublets, with key-words marking the progress of the thought. The first of these, "Ashamed," is found three times in the first three verses, expressing the fear of defeat. Then "Teach," "Teach me thy ways. Teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth and teach me. Desire for personal knowledge of and acquaintance with God. Then the prayer for pardon, key-word, "Remember." Remember thy mercy. Remember not my sin. Remember me.

In the second stanza the key-words are "Way" and "Fear," and in the third the words "Bring forth" and "Deliver." This is a special form of Hebrew parallelism, called the "stair-like." See the word "mighty," Ps. 24:8, and "many," Ps. 31:2, 3, for similar instances.

Practical Suggestions

V. 1. Unto Thee, Jehovah, I lift up my soul. There are two ways of lifting up the soul. To Jehovah, and to vanity, (Ps. 24:4) to that which is transitory, or to that which is eternal, and it is one of the paradoxes of the spiritual world that the only way to go up, is to go down. The Pharisee went up to the temple, to be despised and condemned; the Publican went down justified.

Next door to the majesty on high lies the lowly and penitent heart. I, Jehovah, dwell in the high and holy place; with him also that is of a broken and contrite heart. It is only the contrite spirit that hungers for righteousness. Only in him who is conscious of his own corruption can God create a clean heart. There is no greater barrier to his renewing power than the universal tendency to say "We have no sin." It is the first act of the Holy Spirit in dealing with the soul to convince of sin, and this He does by revealing Christ, before whose perfect purity the whitest human soul turns gray.

The sin is there, though undiscovered. America always was, although till recently unknown. Electricity has been active from the beginning, with all its known and unknown possibilities, though undiscovered, and this is pre-eminently true of sin in every human being. It is present and active, though undiscovered, and most present and powerful where most unrecognized. It is always revealed by the glory of God. Peter, startled into a perception of the divinity of Christ, exclaims, I am a sinful man, O Lord. Isaiah, when he saw Jehovah in the temple, cried, "Woe is me for I am a man of unclean lips," and Job declares, "I have heard of Thee, therefore I abhor myself."

And yet out of this self abhorrence springs the deepest joy that man can know. For here by contrast is the highest revelation of God's love, and so the two act and react upon each other.

The more thy glories strike my eyes
The humbler I shall lie;
Thus while I sink, my joys shall rise
Immeasurably high.

All this, and infinitely more, is contained in the Psalmist's prayer. For thy name's sake, O Jehovah, pardon mine iniquity. For it is great. The whole Psalm seems to be a struggle into the light of God through the sense of sin.

Forgiveness begets desire for guidance. God will teach sinners in his way. But only meek sinners. The meek will he guide in judgment, the meek will he teach his way.

The Vulgate translates the first of these two "meeks" by "tame." The tame will he guide. "Manusuetus," accustomed to the hand, as the domestic animal loves the touch of the hand and is so made more human.

The meek man loves the touch of God. He would be to God what the tame bird is to himself as it perches on his finger and feeds from his hand. The right translation is "helpless," but the Latin word suggests a precious fact abundantly warranted in Scripture, a reverence but child-like confidence in God as our Father; oneness of heart and will with Him. What can satisfy like this?

Sweet to lie passive in his hand and know no will but His.
Used in His service. Trained in His discipline. Cheered by His presence. Transformed into His image by his regenerating power.

Royals Win by 16

The R. C. O. A. team was defeated on the playstead on Saturday by the strong Royal team. The winners obtained the lead early in the game and profiting by the loose playing of their opponents, won their game easily. The score:

BOY AND GIRL CLUBS

A Suggestion For Juvenile Grange Workers.

Form of Organization For Corn Growing Contest Showing Outline For Constitution, Enrollment Record, Details For Growing Crop and Rules For Contestants.

[Special Correspondence.]
Perhaps nothing speaks more encouragingly for the future of farm life than the new interest which is being inspired in our boys and girls in those things which pertain to farm activities. Boys and girls' agricultural clubs and the juvenile granges of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry are evidence of a new order of things. In the agricultural clubs this interest in farm matters very often has its beginning in competitive contests for prizes of one form or another, and sometimes the clubs have been an outgrowth of such contests, and so it is that we have clubs for corn growing, potato growing, fruit culture, live stock study, home culture, etc.

The first state wide movement of this kind began about 1898 in New York under the auspices of the College of Agriculture of Cornell University as a development from its nature study lessons. This work has now gone over the whole state and has taken a variety of forms, such as corn growing, potato growing, fruit growing and garden contests, with special prizes to girls for the best work in sewing and breadmaking. The Cornell Farm Boys and Girls' club now has a membership of 75,000. In Nebraska this club work has been very thoroughly organized, and nearly every county is included in the movement. Early in the fall a local contest is held in each school, the prize winning exhibits and the best three essays being then taken to a township show, then to a county exhibit and finally to the state corn growing and corn cooking contest at Lincoln. This meeting includes a grand "corn banquet," which gathers from 2,000 to 3,000 boys and girls from over the state.

Similar work in Ohio under the direction of the agricultural extension department of the State university has reached practically all the rural boys and girls in the schools of the state. In Illinois this work began under the initiative of certain county superintendents of schools and the farmers' institutes. The exhibits of these young people are frequently the most interesting at our county fairs and state fairs as well.

The work which is being done by these boys and girls' agricultural clubs is just the work that the juvenile granges are doing or should do, and in the juvenile grange even more can be accomplished. These juvenile granges are constituted of boys and girls under fourteen years of age whose parents are members of the subordinate grange, and at every meeting they have their literary programs, all being under the supervision of a matron appointed by the subordinate grange.

It would appear to be quite practicable for these juvenile granges to incorporate the work of a corn growing club or others of similar nature into their own general plan of work, adopting, so far as circumstances would permit, the rules and regulations of the boys and girls' clubs relating to these contests. The following general form of organization as given in farmers' bulletin No. 385 of the United States department of agriculture may be adopted, with modifications:

CONSTITUTION.
Article 1. Name of club.
Article 2. Objects of club.
Article 3. Membership.
Article 4. Officers. (A president, one vice president, a secretary-treasurer and an advisory committee.)
Article 5. Duties of members.
Article 6. Duties of officers.
Section 1. The advisory committee shall arrange for all public contests and exhibits, the procuring and awarding of prizes, the sending of letters and circulars of information and the reporting of statistics and other information to the state organizer.

When the constitution has been adopted membership should be determined by the collection of signed blanks previously distributed showing data as given in the following form:

RULES FOR CONTESTANTS.
Each contestant is allowed to make only one exhibit entry each year.
Each contestant must be regularly enrolled in the club before beginning work.
Each contestant must be under _____ years of age.
Each contestant for corn prizes must prepare his ground, test seed, plant, cultivate, cut and husk crop, all without assistance from any other person. (He may have assistance in plowing, fertilizing and hauling crop and should have in weighing it.)
Each contestant on essays shall write not more than _____ words, and all must carefully fill the blanks on "How the crop was grown."
Each contestant's record and essay must be indorsed, with his exhibit, by his district teacher as evidence of her confidence that it is all the product of his own work.
All exhibits are to be the property of _____ at the end of the exhibit.

RELIEF ASSOCIATIONS.

A Good Word For Grange Fire Insurance Companies.

The New York Farmer has this to say about one of the several co-operative features of grange work:
The Patrons of Husbandry protective fire relief associations seem to have solved easily, economically and satisfactorily the problem of fire insurance for farmers. The records show that, even in years when numerous fires swell the total of loss, the associations give cheaper and better insurance than the regular insurance companies. The farmers in these associations when they pay assessments are contributing directly to the restoration of the burned properties. They know that if they pay $20,000 for a year's losses $19,900 of that sum will be applied to the cost of administration. In the regular companies their paid in money would be spent in some way unknown to them, and they would not know in case they lost property by fire what they would get out of the companies until the companies had exhausted every trick possible in cutting down the amount to be paid. In the Patron association the actual loss, promptly and fairly measured, is the basis of the assessment, and the readjustment is short and simple. Farmers who are not in the Patron associations should learn what these excellent organizations are doing to make fire insurance on country property safe, sane, plain, fair, square, equitable and economical.

The Grange Institute.
As a popularizer of grange work and an excellent way to impress upon the community that a grange is a strong factor in improving local farming conditions, says State Lecturer Taber of Ohio, a grange or independent institute supported by the grange will prove effective. Where there is no regular institute in the community the grange officials, by the expenditure of a little effort and money, can arrange a program that will interest and instruct. By securing some outside talent to represent the grange the result will usually be strengthening to the membership by bringing in seven applicants. A grange that holds two or three open day open meetings or institutes each year reports growth in interest and membership. An open meeting or two with a program of general agricultural interest will always prove worthy of trial by any grange.

A New Hampshire Grange.
McClary grange, New Hampshire, recently celebrated its twenty-fifth anniversary. The records show that this grange has had 302 members, 500 meetings and an average attendance of 25. There are now 170 members. Twenty-five couples have been married from this grange, 50 have died, 30 have moved out of the state, and 20 of the 25 charter members are still living.

Echoes from Des Moines indicate that the question of representation isn't settled satisfactorily to all yet, says the National Stockman.

Answering a question, a master can hold that office until his successor is installed.

BOSTON THEATRES

Majestic—"East Lynne."
Park—"The Man From Home."
American Music Hall—"The Battle."
Tremont—"Girl in the Taxi."

MAJESTIC

"East Lynne" is being given a revival at the Majestic this week. Miss Charlotte Hunt is all that could be desired in her part as Lady Isabel, and it is doubtful if "East Lynne" has ever been seen to better advantage.

PARK

This week is positively the last in the engagement of "The Man From Home" at the Park theatre. The piece has been here for twenty-six weeks, but it started its twenty-seventh on Monday with as much success and interest as it has ever possessed.

TREMONT

There are only a few more opportunities to see "The Girl in the Taxi," as this is the last week of its stay at the Tremont. This delightful and laughable farce has delighted many theatre-goers, and the last few performances will be enjoyed to the utmost.

AMERICAN MUSIC HALL

Cleveland Moffet's thrilling play, "The Battle," as portrayed by the Lindsay Morrison stock company, is at the American Music Hall this week. Socialist doctrine is an undercurrent in the movement of the play and the entire action is rapid and holds the attention of the audience from the beginning.

Weak? Tired? Run-down?

These conditions come from overwork, a weak stomach, overtaxed nerves or feeble blood. When you feel "all in"—hardly able to drag about, no energy, no ambition, easily exhausted and can't sleep—take and note what a difference they make in your condition. The stomach is the first to feel the good effects. Food tastes good, the digestion is strengthened, bowels and bile work regularly, the blood is cleansed, and the nerves rested. The whole system responds to the tonic action of Beecham's Pills. Soon there is the buoyant feeling of returning health.

Miss Inga Bretsen of Williamantic, Conn., is the guest for the week of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hendricksen, Andover street.

The local company are receiving many words of commendation for their fine, effective work at the fire last Monday.

Mrs. William Majerison of Lawrence spent Wednesday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Felix G. Haynes of High street.

Rev. Charles Handy and Miss Elsie Handy of Grinnell, Iowa, are the guests of the former's son, Rev. W. S. Handy, Tewksbury street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwin Shaw and son Benjamin of Melrose Highlands spent the Fourth with the former's mother, Mrs. Martha Shaw.

Rev. Charles Handy of Grinnell, Iowa, will occupy his son's pulpit at the Methodist church next Sunday at 10.30 a.m. The public is very cordially invited to attend.

Miss Gladys Littlewood will have charge of the "good of the order" at the meeting of Ballardvale lodge next Monday evening. It will undoubtedly be a meeting of special interest to all those who attend.

Trow and McIntyre are working exceedingly hard in practice evenings and certainly should make a very effective battery for the home team. Their fine work last Monday attracted considerable attention.

Dr. Edward A. Miller and wife of Natick spent Monday with the former's mother, Mrs. Charles Shaw. They are making the trip in their auto to Bridgton, Me., where they will spend their two weeks' vacation.

There will be an executive meeting of the baseball association in the old schoolhouse this evening at 8 o'clock. Let every member make a special effort to be present, as business of importance will come before the meeting.

The firemen were called out shortly after noon Thursday by an alarm rung in from Box 28. It proved to be a brush fire which at one time seemed to threaten George Pillsbury's barn, but the fire was soon gotten under control.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. L. Sites, who have been visiting Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Byington, returned to Boston on Wednesday. They will leave this country in a short time and return to China, where they have already had such a varied and successful career as missionaries.

Considerable excitement was occasioned Thursday morning about 5.30 by an alarm of fire rung in from box 24. The local firemen responded quickly and by timely and efficient work finally got the fire under control. The fire originated in the waste house of the Ballardvale Mills Co., and the fierce flames had spread to the nearby barn and the hay-mows and all the upper part of the barn were a mass of devouring flames before the alarm was given. The firemen did everything that could be done and confined the fire to the barn, and merit special mention for their good work, as for a time a number of the surrounding buildings were threatened.

Card of Thanks

To all friends and neighbors who so freely gave their assistance in saving the contents of our home, and also to the Ballardvale Fire Department for their quick response and most efficient work, we give our most heartfelt thanks.
Signed
Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Farrell.

Ballardvale 6, Reading 5

Ballardvale broke their spell of hard luck on the Fourth of July afternoon by defeating the Reading Independents on the playstead in a close and exciting game, by a score of 6 to 5.

For the home team, Trow pitched a strong, heady game and although his support was rocky at times, he never let up until his team was landed a victor. McIntyre, Cunningham, Riley and Collins played good ball. For the visitors, Turner, although batted for nine hits, pitched good ball at the critical times.

No Drinkers for Chauffeurs

Daniel McPherson of Roxbury, 24, was sentenced to the house of correction yesterday for four months by Judge DeCourcy, in the superior criminal court, after he had vainly tried to change his lower court plea of guilty to not guilty on the charge of driving an automobile while intoxicated, and plead guilty to reckless driving, to which he had pleaded not guilty. Half of the sentence is as a punishment on the charge given and the other half on another complaint for reckless driving.

On May 31, according to the evidence of half a dozen witnesses, while McPherson was driving at a dangerous rate of speed on Columbus avenue, he struck Joseph Gleason, a boy of 16, breaking his arm in two places. An officer of Division 10 seized him as he was making an effort to get away, it is charged.

McPherson, who lives at 23 Beechthorn street, is employed as watchman at a garage at Washington and Green streets.

In reply to the statement of his mother, to the effect that he was her only support, Judge DeCourcy said it was the almost invariable rule in these cases. The innocent sufferer, but if punishment was stopped on that account, no one would be punished for crime.

Judge DeCourcy said the man was very fortunate that he did not have to face a charge of having killed someone while he was driving in such a reckless manner.

"Anyone who drives one of these terrible machines, with all its possibilities of danger, while under the influence of liquor, is a menace to the community," said the court, "and should be properly punished."

The True Purposes of Education

President Joyner of the National Educational association, at Tuesday's session at Boston, had some valuable and interesting facts to offer regarding public education.

Prof. Joyner said in part: "Every man needs and should be provided two sorts of education—one to fit him to work, the other to fit him to live. The two sorts should be combined in the same system, proceeding side by side in proper proportion."

"I agree with those who hold that it would be a fatal blunder to permit in our system of American education the establishment and the maintenance of entirely separate systems of vocational schools."

"There is no place for peasant schools, for separate schools for special classes of any sort, in a democracy."

"Such a separation of the purely cultural from the purely practical or vocational in our American system of education would inevitably increase social cleavage along vocational lines, would be uneconomic in effort, time and money, would prove a disintegrating force, tending to destroy the unity of education and the homogeneity of our population."

"By one-sided education for the many we must not drag our civilization down to the deadening level of mere materialism, our average man down to the low plane of a mere machine, fitted to do his work with skill, but without fitness to live his life with happiness and satisfaction to himself and to others."

"You cannot measure the greatest worth of a man in our democracy by a money-mad world's tapeline of dollars and cents."

The Tibetan Tea Trade

Yachou-fu is a great centre of the Tibetan tea trade. The tea grows everywhere on the surrounding hills, and is brought into the town looking like huge bundles of withered brush wood, full of sticks and dirt. After being damped, this is compressed into long bamboo baskets, each holding thirty pounds, and these baskets are carried into Tibet, over high mountain passes and boulder-strewn paths, on the backs of coolies. One of these human pack-mules will carry about four hundred and twenty pounds of tea.

This tea trade is a great industry and at certain seasons of the year one meets a continuous string of the tea-carriers, extending for hundreds of miles along the road. They can earn about ten cents a day, but the hard work soon wears them out, and many of them die from exhaustion on the high passes.

Where Smuggling Is Regarded as an Honorable and Legitimate Profession

St. Julia de Loria, the rival of Andorra-la-Villa, is the great trade and smuggling center. It has about six hundred inhabitants only, but can boast several large shops and warehouses, openly displaying a matter of fact, the whole nation are more or less smugglers—on principle. They have neither import nor export duties themselves, and they are fully persuaded of the benefits of Free Trade for everybody. France makes commodities wanted in Spain; Spain grows articles required in France—and Andorra lies between these two nations. What more natural than that she should give aid to both her neighbors—for a consideration, of course? But smuggling in Andorra is not looked upon as a fraudulent business. On the contrary, it is considered an honorable and legitimate profession—almost an art—and one that, in its higher branches, requires many aptitudes—business capacity, astuteness, diplomacy, a thorough knowledge of the art of bribery, and a military method for directing one's forces and commanding one's subordinates. For instance, a wealthy Andorran goes over the border into Spain and buys up cheaply thousands of sheep, which he pays for in Spanish money; they are driven home to his mountain pastures, where they are marked with his cipher. Then, in company with his head man, he strolls casually across to the French frontier—every inch of which he and his underlings know by heart—and drops into the hut of the commandant of the "douaniers" for a chat. Before leaving, the "petit verre"—and bank-notes of greater or less value are left lying on the table. Nothing definite is said; nobody's conscience or dignity is compromised. A few days later thousands of Andorran sheep are sold in the markets of France and paid for in French money. How did they get across the frontier? Ah, that's just the point! The mere fact of buying with Spanish money and selling for French means from 20 to 30 per cent profit, without counting the differences in the prices of the animals. In addition, olive-oil, superior qualities of wines, salt, sugar, and ultramarine are the principal commodities smuggled into France. The articles that go into Spain are mostly glass and china, fancy articles, bric-a-brac, paper and cutlery; also a large number of mules. The latter are bought in a wretched state for almost a song in France, turned out to grass on the splendid Andorran pastures for a few months, and sold in Spain at the end of the season for a high figure.—"A Remarkable Republic" in the July Wide World Magazine.

The Real Tariff

A great many people talk a good deal about the tariff, but how many really understand anything about it? It is common enough to hear it asserted that but for the tariff many things would be cheaper, while a Massachusetts commission has recently reported that the high cost of living cannot be attributed to the tariff.

A speech made by Congressman Longworth contains some observations that are interesting. Mr. Longworth took up the matter of the cost of food and included numerous things that make up the bill of fare of the people. In the case of beef, the Payne bill puts hides on the free list and reduced the duty on dressed meats 25 per cent. Then the prices advanced. The Payne bill reduced the duty on hams 20 per cent. The price of hams went up. The duty on peas, cabbage and beans was reduced from 25 to 30 per cent, and not a single vegetable duty was increased, but they all advanced in price. The duty on lard was reduced 30 per cent, yet lard has gone up from 11 to 21 cents per pound.

According to Congressman Longworth, "the only dinner that man in this country could eat, the cost of which could be increased as a result of the new tariff bill, would be a dinner consisting of lemons, figs, pineapples and salted almonds, washed down with a cup of coffee made out of chicory root, and topped off with a glass of brandy and a cigarette."—Bankers and Tradesman.
